Can solar panels power a home?

Solar panels are used to power everything from calculators to sports stadiums to satellites -- and they can just as easily be used to power a home. You don't need to be a rocket scientist - or anything close to it - to get solar panels for your home.

Should you buy or sell a home with solar power?

If you want to use solar power for your home, your options include buying a system, leasing a system, or signing an agreement to buy solar power. Before you agree to anything, know what you're getting. Depending on the option you choose, you might get certain tax breaks or need to take extra steps before selling your home.

Do home solar panels save money?

Home solar installations include more equipment than just solar panels. You don't need to live somewhere warm or with abundant sunshine to save with solar. Most homeowners will save tens of thousands of dollars by going solar. Solar panels come with great incentives--but the best federal program expires on January 1, 2026.

Can you buy a solar energy system with a mortgage?

New homeowners can add solar as part of their mortgage with loans available through the Federal Housing Administration, which allow borrowers to include financing for home improvements in the home's purchase price. Buying a solar energy system makes you eligible for the Solar Investment Tax Credit, or ITC.

Why should I get solar panels for my home?

There are a handful of reasons to get solar panels for your home, but the biggest one is energy cost savings. Home solar is simply much cheaper than paying for grid electricity, and can lead to tens - sometimes hundreds - of thousands in savings over the warranty period of the panels.

How much do solar panels cost?

Research has found that solar panels are viewed as upgrades, just like a renovated kitchen or a finished basement, and home buyers across the country have been willing to pay a premium of about $15,000 for a home with an average-sized solar array. Additionally, there is evidence homes with solar panels sell faster than those without.
