What are container homes?

Container homes are a new idea which was brought about by the green movement looking for environmentally friendly building options. These homes are built using shipping containers which are no longer in service. This new prefab housing trend is taking off and has quickly become our top recommendation for Canadians.

Are container homes legal in Canada?

The short answer is: Yes, container homes are legal in Canada, but zoning laws and building codes vary by location. Urban vs. Rural Areas -> Some cities require special permits, while rural areas are often more flexible. Foundation & Building Codes -> Homes must meet structural and safety regulations.

Why should you choose a prefab home from container homes Canada?

Choosing a prefab home from Container Homes Canada comes with numerous advantages. Our prefab homes are more cost-effective than traditional construction, thanks to reduced labor costs and minimized waste.
